Nerve goes live on Hot Radio

The SUBU (Students' Union at Bournemouth University) radio station Nerve Radio is about to simulcast on Hot Radio 102.8FM from February every Monday evening at 9pm-11pm.

Hot Radio, which is a community radio station for Poole and its surrounding areas, is all about showcasing the local community. Therefore, the student-based radio shows from Nerve will fit right in, offering the listeners lots of fun and great music.

"This partnership is so exciting for Nerve. It gives students a platform to get their voice heard on FM radio, which is huge. It really feels like the group working at Nerve this year are going to leave their mark on the station for years to come, which fills me with immense pride in the team."

Chuck Adolphy, Station Manager of Nerve Radio.

This has been a project in the works now for over a year, involving multiple teams. Nerve's previous station manager, Connor Morrin, began building a healthy relationship with Kevin Scott, a director at Hot Radio. Chuck has continued to develop the relationship with Hot Radio to the point where they are ready to go on air.

There hasn't been any similar collaborations with Nerve but two weeks every year they do go on FM radio – so they aren't completely alien to the concept of playing out in people's cars! Similar partnerships in the past have been hugely prosperous for those involved who have gone to work in the industry.
